

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method and system for processing object property changes are provided. A request to process at least one object property is obtained and a property change defer cycle is started. The object property change is grouped into one or more object property change groups. In the event the object property groups implementation creates additional property changes, the additional property changes are grouped and then implemented. The property change defer cycle is terminated and the object property groupings are implemented.